

Trump Speech Reading Packet

Transcript, keypoints, and vocabulary for intermediate readers

Roll Call Factba.se - Speech: Donald Trump Delivers an Address at the Teddy Roosevelt Library - July 1, 2026

Source: <https://rollcall.com/factbase/trump/transcript/donald-trump-speech-theodore-roosevelt-presidential-library-opening-july-1-2026/>

Segments: 140 Words: 9431

Estimated reading time: 52 min at 180 words/min Listening time: 1 hr 2 min

Format follows the English news-report packet style: Georgia body text, Avenir Next headings, light-highlight study notes, and compact vocabulary review.

Reading Transcript

Highlighted words are learner-focused suggestions for readers around a 5,000-word English vocabulary level. Estimated reading time: 52 min; listening time: 1 hr 2 min.

Well, I want to thank everybody. This is an honor. We love you, and you've been so nice to me with those votes. We set every record in the book. But today, we come to the heartland of America to pay tribute to a man who embodied the heart and soul and fight and spirit of our country as much as anyone who ever lived.

And he's a very special man and that's why I'm here, President Theodore Roosevelt. And he loved your community, he loved your state, and he was quite something. He was really quite something. And here, beneath the wide open sky of the Badlands -- they call it the Badlands. I said, what's that all about? It's pretty cool.

It's a pretty cool name, I have to tell you. On the steps of the Burning Hills, we dedicate a living monument to a legend, a statesman, a soldier, a frontiersman, and a true American hero. This is a very exciting thing for me. And, number one, I have to tell you, because this was an inaugural flight of a certain airplane called Air Force One, after 37 years.

And it's a great plane and we have -- we had a lot of fun with Doug and everybody coming over, but we talked about Theodore Roosevelt a lot, because he was something that was really very special. And number two, because I'm honoring Theodore Roosevelt, and that's the man who I have long admired. He's one of the few -- I don't admire too many people, I have to tell you. [Laughter] There's not a lot of people out there.

And number three, I'm back in North Dakota because I won this state with the most votes in the history of the presidency. Thank you. Thank you very much. And number four, I have two teleprompters that aren't working and here I stand. But TR once observed that I would not have been president about himself, had he not been and had it not been for the experience in North Dakota.

He had a great experience here it really shaped him so, so much. So there could be no better place for this new national treasure than the Rough Rider state. I met some of the Rough Riders. They are rough Riders. They are good riders, too. They were very impressive. Today, 107 years after he passed into eternity, Theodore Roosevelt's presidential library opens its doors in the small town, but very great town and, today, it's a very famous town because that's all they're talking about, of Medora.

Opens its arms to the entire world. The entire world is watching. It's not a big town, but it's a very powerful town because of what was left behind. I want to thank the thousands of people who worked so hard to make this project a reality, and you really did. You made it a beautiful reality. Very few places -- very -- very few places will top it. And starting with the man who put the library in its first funding -- think of this, did so much, he raised so much money.

He did so many different things, he really did. He had a very complete life, wouldn't you think? He was a real man of many forms of genius, and without whom it would never have been possible, secretary of the interior. And I'll tell you what, I thought he was an oil man, and he wasn't. [Laughter] I saw him on a debate, because this guy was actually going against me, can you believe it? But I thought he was very impressive.

I thought his wife, Catherine, was even more impressive, to be honest with you. And so impressive that I said, he's a good man; that guy is all right. But he's been fantastic. He's been a tremendous secretary of the interior and the best ever. There's never been a secretary of the interior like Doug Burgum.

Thank you very much. Thank you. Never been. And you know, Doug called me he said, would you do me a favor? He's really fantastic, because I did not know the gentleman too well, but he said, Kelly Armstrong is fantastic; would you endorse him for governor? And I did, and he won easily, Kelly Armstrong. Great job you're doing.

Great job. And two of my very good friends, two warrior Senators, tough cookies. They're tough. Oh, I wish they could get their way, we could get a couple of little things passed, like voter identification, like proof of citizenship. It's called SAVE America. You know, that's pretty good, SAVE America. Can you imagine?

That's right. We have 100 percent of the Democrats against it and four or five Republicans, if you can believe that. What are they all about? [Audience boos] But these two people are with us all the way, John Hoeven and Kevin Cramer, Senators. They're great. Two great guys. And a Congresswoman who fights and gets what she wants and she's very respected, Julie Fedorchak.

Thank you, Julie. Thank you. Very, very respected. And we have our ambassador, Monica. Where's Monica? Monica, Monica Crowley, fantastic. Acting Secretary of the Navy, Hung Cao. And we're building a lot of ships, building a lot of ships. North Dakota House Speaker, Robin Wise. Thank you. Thank you. Doing a great job.

State House Majority Leader, Mike Lefor. Mike? Thank you, Mike. State Senate Majority Leader, David Hogue. Thank you, David. And all of the members of the North Dakota legislature. I hear every single one. I'm not going to introduce you. You have no chance of that; I'll be here all day. But you're all here and we love you and you've been with us from day one.

Thank you very much. Thank you. And the CEO, who's done a fantastic job. He took me around. I thought it would be maybe 10 minutes, five minutes. I -- I've been doing this for two hours. Thank goodness I love the subject or I would not have put up with it. [Laughter] Doug said, you could come in -- you know, I'm prosecuting a war, which we're winning very easily, by the way.

But -- but I said, Doug, let's fly in, we'll do 10, 15 minutes I know I'm going to love it, and then I'll get out. Oh, absolutely, sir. So then time comes, he got me making speeches. I was over there two hours. I know more about that museum than the people that built it, but that's OK, because they did a very good job.

I can report that they did a really good job. The CEO of the Theodore Roosevelt Presidential Library, who really did give me a tremendous amount of knowledge, I mean, about things that I never would have thought could have been possible about how great this man was, Ed O'Keefe. Ed, thank you very much. And two of my sons are here, Eric and Don. And Bettina, thank you very much.

Don just got married. Bettina, thank you. It's going to be great. Thank you very much. But the members of the Roosevelt family and countless foundation staff, donors and supporters, everyone's here. And I understand that one local construction worker delayed his retirement by four years just to be involved with the building, and they heard I was going to come.

I was coming even when I wasn't president. I had agreed to come and they said, well, when we do it, you're going to be president, so that was during that ridiculous time, that ridiculous -- -- that ridiculous four year period of time. They asked me to come. I said, I'd love to come and I said, I may or may not be president.

They said, we don't care. We want you to be there. And I always remember that. But they said, you're going to win. You know that; if you run, you're going to win. And it turned out we did, quite easily, actually. And today I can tell you that we can see why it was worth it. It's really amazing. They've done an amazing job, beautiful job.

And you know, they've done it from love. Jobs that are done from love are always better than jobs where you sort of have to follow a plan. They made lots of changes and they -- every one of them was good and I think I know about every one of them. After 2.5 hours, I learned every single one of them. But I want to really thank everyone who greeted me at the train station, because that was so famous.

That was such a famous train. The last one was President Dwight Eisenhower, and he was actually a very good president. People don't realize he was a general, good general, and he was actually, built the interstate highway system. I'd say that alone is pretty good. He did -- he was a good -- and that was -- he was the last one.

He was on the back of the exact same train. So the head of the railroad, he was fabulous, and they were explaining all about the train. And they said, wow, that's really some history. And the crowd, we had thousands of people over there. It was fantastic. But I have the picture of President Eisenhower in the back of the train, in the same exact train.

I checked it out because I said we don't want to make any mistakes because the fake news is watching and they'll say, it wasn't -- it wasn't the same train. It wasn't the same train. No, they've been pretty nice to me lately. Look, when you do as well as we're doing, they have to be nice, I guess. They've been pretty nice.

And I want to give a very special thanks to the Patriots who gave us such an incredible escort from town. We had more law enforcement. You know, I love law enforcement and according to -- According to the people that are running on the other side, in many places, they want to defund the police. That's not going to happen. [Audience boos] That's not going to happen.

We see them all the time. They said they're social Democrats. Doesn't it sound pretty? They're actually communists, but we'll get into that a little bit later. They're not going to win -- they're not going to win anything. They've got some very unattractive candidates, I have to say. [Laughter] During my first term, it was a privilege to sign the bill that helped get this incredible project underway.

And transferring 90 acres, we took it right out of the federal government, we ripped it away from the federal government. They don't know it's missing, they still haven't figured out what the hell happened. And today, the artistry and scholarship, technical skill on display right here and in that museum in particular is just fantastic, it's really great.

Things that they actually gave me. You know, we're going to build our museum in Miami. They got me a lot of ideas. Doug, you gave me a lot of ideas, Doug. But they really did it well, incredible. I even had a conversation with Theodore Roosevelt. I said, what did you think about the Panama Canal? Do you consider that your greatest achievement?

How do you feel about the fact that the Democrats gave the Panama Canal away to Panama for $1? [Audience boos] You know, he built the Panama Canal, preceded really by a man who was actually -- he was the tariff king, William McKinley. He was the president and they took his name off Mount McKinley and put it back on because it deserved it, put it back on. But McKinley, actually he was assassinated, but he made tremendous amounts of money; made our country very rich.

And then Teddy Roosevelt, as the vice president, got in and he did some incredible things. But one of them, I think one of the most amazing, maybe a lot of people would say the parks, you could say a lot of different elements of his success, incredible. But he built the Panama Canal. It was the most expensive project to this date, if you bring the dollars forward, ever built in history. 38,000 people died.

They died 95 percent from mosquitoes, malaria -- 95 percent. You expected almost to die. They paid workers from the United States, mostly -- they came in and mostly, I must say, men. It was a little different time. Today we'd have many women, but they had all men. And they paid them massive amounts of money, more than they were making as workers in the United States.

Such a fascinating thing, the Panama Canal. I've studied it long and hard, and when they -- when they gave it away, $1 -- $1. But they died from the mosquito, and they died from the snake. They have a viper, a snake, that if you get bit, you're in trouble. If you got bit, you were dead, you were dead. And that wiped out about 5 percent.

We lost 38,000 people building the Panama Canal, our people. 38,000 people died building the Panama Canal. It opened and from day one it was very successful, and we gave it away -- we gave it away. It was the most expensive thing we ever built, and it was also the most profitable thing we ever built. That's a nice combination, a little bit like Venezuela.

We did a good job in Venezuela. But -- And we're actually doing equally as well with the Islamic Republic of Iran. Maybe you've heard of it. But think of it, the Panama Canal -- so, we gave it away. The first thing they did -- you know what they did? They raised the prices for the ships by four times, and they didn't lose one ship.

And then they raised it again twice, and they didn't lose one ship. All they did is make tremendous amounts of money for years and years. How stupid was that? And now China is trying to take over the Panama Canal, and we're not going to let that happen, OK? And that was not part of the script because I don't really have a script because this thing doesn't work.

It's appropriate -- the one on my right is slightly better than the one on my left. The one on my left is a waste of time. It's a little like politics; the one on my right is a little bit. It's not great; I'd give it about a 2 on the scale of 10. And this afternoon, I'm pleased to announce that, through the National Endowment for the Humanities, we will be awarding the library $750,000 to support the opening exhibits during the first year.

So, they're getting a nice check -- getting a nice check. And as you know, this week, Americans all across our nation are filled with joy and excitement and anticipation as we prepare for one of the proudest moments in our history. 250 years, think about that. Three days from now, we will celebrate the 250th anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence.

What a document that was. And this week, we look back on 250 years of glorious freedom, and we took so much time and so much effort. And by the way, on July 4th, it's going to be approximately 107 degrees out. And I'm going to go and I'm going to make a really long speech just to show that I can do anything.

It's going to be 107. But you know what? They also predicted -- the fight that we had three weeks ago was unbelievable at the White House. They said a week before, six days, five days, four days, three days, two days, one day -- they said it was going to rain; it's going to be horrible, you're going to have to cancel the fight.

Sir, we're going to have to cancel. This was a big event. This was one of the highest rated fights in history. It was on CBS National on a Sunday night, not a Saturday night. Saturday nights are called Death Valley for television. I know a lot about ratings. But Sunday night's very good and it was broadcast on CBS, a network, and it got among the highest ratings any fight has ever gotten.

But they said it was going to rain. And I talked to Dana White. I said, Dana, I don't know, this is bad. Sir, it's a 100 percent chance of rain. I said are you sure? Like maybe 90? No, 100 percent, sir. So, it was 7:00 and it wasn't raining, and it started at 8:00, and we were going to delay it till 12:00 midnight.

I said that's not good. But it wasn't raining at 8:00, and it wasn't raining at 830. And we had the fight on time, and it never rained -- never rained. So, you never know about weather forecasting, do you? With all the money we spend, we spend all that money. It's happened before. We had a big march in Washington.

You remember that? That was going to be rained out. Sir, we're going to have to change it, rained out -- never rained. So, we're getting pretty good at that. But this is a time to rediscover the indomitable spirit that built our country and all that will ensure America always remains the most exceptional nation on the face of the earth.

We're not going to let communists get in our way, we're not going to let anyone get in our way, not the communists. It's a very unattractive lot. They're not going to do it. They're not doing anything, those people. What they're doing, they're so stupid, they're so stupid. There could be no better place to begin this rediscovery than with the lifetimes and passions of Theodore Roosevelt.

He had great passion. The Colonel, they called him, was an American man. He was really a great he man; he was an American man through and through. His chest swelled with American optimism, confidence, enthusiasm, pride. His heartbeat with an unyielding sense of America's destiny and pride. And that pride was bigger than -- the biggest word for him, I think, was pride.

He was a proud man. But I'm a proud man; I'm proud of our country. I'm proud that two years ago we had a country that was a laughingstock all over the world, and now we have the hottest country anywhere in the world. The most respected country anywhere in the world. But as a young boy, I saw that he loved Lincoln and Lincoln's casket would pass through a nation torn apart by civil war.

I don't know if you know that. I think Roosevelt, I think is probably his biggest -- I was trying to get that today, and I think it came pretty loud and clear. Abraham Lincoln was the person that he most respected, most admired, most looked up to. He has a beautiful picture of Lincoln that he had in his --- one of his rooms, one of his very important rooms where he lived.

And it's at the -- it's at the library. By the end of the 60 years, TR had transformed his country by the reach of his vision. He had a great vision. And by the force of his will into one of the greatest places, one of the greatest empires, one of the most incredible countries ready to take its rightful place as the strongest and most respected nation anywhere in the world.

They didn't have people that didn't -- couldn't -- they had no idea where they were. They didn't have people that couldn't walk up the steps. See those steps? They didn't have people that had no idea where the hell they were. They didn't have people that said, let's have open borders so millions and millions of people can pour into our country from prisons all over the world. [Audience boos] They didn't have those people.

They had strong, smart people, like Teddy Roosevelt. Today, America is stronger and more respected right now. I'll tell you, the king of Saudi Arabia, I was with him a year ago, smart guy, good guy. He said to me, sir, you know, it's amazing -- and this was as we were -- just starting to really -- and we've made a lot of progress since then.

You see the numbers, factories being built all over the country at a level that we've never had before. But he said, you know, one year ago, during the Biden, Sleepy Joe, during the Biden administration, he said, one year ago, your country was dead. We gave up on your country. They were looking at China. They were looking at others to protect them.

They were looking at other countries. And now you have the hottest country anywhere in the world. He said that, and it's true now it's even more so than it was then. Hottest country anywhere in the world. So Theodore Roosevelt in his presidency fell exactly at the halfway mark between the founding in 1776 and the place we are today in 2026. And here are five lessons.

And I wanted to write these because you can learn from some people, not from too many. From a lot of them, you don't want to learn much, but you can learn from him and here are five lessons that are really extraordinary, life offers to all Americans on the threshold of our 250th year. First of all, the life of Theodore Roosevelt reminds us that Americans never give up. We don't give up. You know, if you really look back two years ago, I could see people wanting to give up. I could see them wanting to give up. He never stopped, never quit, never surrendered in pursuit of his dreams.

He had a dream, a very complex dream, he did, because of the way he traveled, the way he moved, the fact that he ended up here and turned out to be one of the most impactful things he ever did, ending up right here, where we are. But his pursuit of the American dream never, ever stopped. It was really amazing.

He was plagued by asthma very, very bad, very serious. He was having a hard time breathing for much of his life. But he went out and he was told by his doctor that he'd have to live very quietly, he'd have to -- this is as a young man. He was told, you'd have to be and have a very quiet life. You have to be nice and easy, and he did just the opposite.

He had a freaking wild life, right? He was wild. He just didn't want to take that. He didn't want to listen to his doctor. He didn't want to be quiet. He wanted to be great. He actually wanted to be great, and that's what he turned out to be. Young Theodore replied, doctor, I'm going to do all the things that you tell me not to do, and I've got to live the sort of life that you've described.

I don't care how short it is, I just want to live my life the way I want to live my life. It was great. I mean, who would say that? The next year, he sailed the Atlantic and he summited the Matterhorn, just to prove that he could do these things, just to prove his doctor wrong. He knew his doctor. He wanted to prove him wrong.

Maybe it wasn't smart, but it worked out OK. But again and again, he summoned the will to transcend tragedy and triumph and defeat heartbreak with hard work. He worked hard and I found that out. I mean, if you love what you do, it's not work. That's one thing I will tell you. People say, I work hard, but it's not work because if you love it -- I love making America great again.

I mean, I'm having a good time. So it's not work. We call it work, but it's not. In his library, we find his diary open to the page from 1884, when his mother and his wife died on the very same day in the very same house, totally unrelated, just a tragic moment, but unrelated. There wasn't an accident where both of them were killed, they just died.

And he came back home and he said, what happened? They're both dead, different parts of the house, had nothing to do -- it's just an amazing -- wife was very young, mother was older, but she was getting by. The light has gone out from my life, he wrote. But Theodore Roosevelt did not surrender to fate. He came here to Medora and made himself fate's master.

I said, I want to be fate's master. He wanted to turn the tables, and he really showed that that's what Americans can do, that's what people can do. Beyond Americans, that's what people can do if they really believe, and they set their mind to it and if they're competent. I mean, you have to be competent.

You have to be smart. It's nice to say anybody can do it, not anybody can do it. They'd like to say, uh, oh, anybody can do it no, no, but he was a special person. He arrived at this town narrow-chested, 140 pounds. He looked pretty bad to the people here because they're pretty tough people around here, never changed.

He was sick, he was shattered from the death of these two people that he loved the most, and his body and his spirit were pretty much broken, not broken enough, but pretty much broken. If they were broken all the way, he wouldn't have been able to do what he did. He left here two years later, he weighed 40 pounds more and he was strong as an ox. They say it was 40 pounds of muscle.

I don't know how the hell that happened. They didn't have modern day drugs. Of course, the modern day drugs don't do that either, do they? In fact, they actually take away the muscle. That's not good. How are we doing, doctor? Well, you lost a lot of muscle. That's not good. But we didn't have any of that.

He went -- he was 40 pounds of steel. The vital man of vigor who would become president of the United States not that long after he left. Wow. That's amazing. I know what it takes to do that, it's tough. As a sheriff's deputy, he heard three thieves had stolen the only boat in town, so he built another and over three days, chased the criminals 300 miles.

He wanted -- oh, those poor criminals. We need a little bit more of that in our country, don't -- but we do pretty good. We have the best border we've ever had. We do pretty good. Think of it, we have the best border, strongest border. We went from the worst border in history, in three months, to the best border in history.

So we do OK. But he was a man who could get crushed beneath a horse. He was crushed, get up and he kept riding. People said, you got to get back -- we got to get you to -- no, no, no, I'm going to keep riding. He could take a bullet to the chest, stand up and keep speaking. He had a little luck. He had a lot of paper there.

I saw it today, a bullet hole right through both of them. But so lucky, got lucky, but other people wouldn't have done what he did. He could feel sick, and he was often feeling sick. Deep in the Amazon jungles, he would get extremely sick and maybe he shouldn't have been there. He knew what was happening.

It was a very dangerous place, from that standpoint, from the standpoint of catching some pretty bad diseases. And he caught them, and yet he carried on. When he was half dead and most people think he was going to die, they thought he was going to die, they said, Teddy Roosevelt is going to die, but he carried on, and he was still standing.

He never sat, he never rested, he just kept going. As America turns 250 years old, we look at this remarkable man, and we recall that with effort, determination and drive, there is nothing that Americans of competence cannot do, nothing. Our ancestors were the people who raised up New York City from the marshes of Manhattan and then ventured into the Dakotas to carve up a life in the place that they called hell with the fires burned out.

I don't know what the hell that's supposed to mean. Hell with the fires burned out -- that doesn't sound so nice. But you did and you've become a tremendously wealthy state, a very successful state with low taxes. I mean, you have great government. You have great government, these people right over here and the people I introduced.

But other places have good land, they have valuable assets under the land and they're losing. You know, California was our third biggest oil drilling state, Doug, not so long ago. It's got tremendous amounts of oil, nobody knows that. It was third after Texas. Years ago, it was a big oil drilling; now they won't drill because the environmental lunatics have said, don't do it. And it's not a state that's doing very well.

In fact, it's doing extremely poorly. One of the most beautiful states in the world, best weather, best everything. From winning our independence to laying the railroads, taming the West and planting our flag on the moon, nothing great that America has ever done has come without staggering effort, and it has never come easy.

It's been really an unflagging persistence that drove us into greatness. We had the persistence of great people, great men, great women. They were persistent; they never gave up. This country was built on the conviction that just because something is hard to do, that only means that Americans try even harder.

And they succeed almost all the time, because whatever the obstacle, whatever the challenge, it's no match for American grit. And you have it probably as much or more than any other place there is. You have American grit. And second, Theodore Roosevelt reminds us all that to be a great nation and to be a free nation, we must have courage.

Without courage, you have nothing. As TR once put it, freedom is not a gift that lasts long in the hands of cowards. How about that? Doesn't last long in the hands of cowards. What a great statement. I want to use that -- I shouldn't have said it, I would have used that statement, and I wouldn't have attributed it to TR. And they would have said, oh, what a great statement that is. Trump made a brilliant speech.

What do you think, John? Would I get away with that, Kevin? I don't know, maybe not. But that's a great statement; that's a beautiful thing to say. But in the West, he tracked a 1,200-pound grizzly. My two boys know all about that. I say, are grizzlies dangerous? Is a grizzly bear dangerous. I looked at Eric and Don; they know more about that stuff than any human being, I'll tell you.

They said they're real dangerous, dad. I said are they violent -- bears? They said they're really violent. Right, fellas? You said they are violent, but that doesn't scare them. Just be scared, OK, and get the hell out of there. But we want to keep you around. But when it roared a big one and it wanted to strike him, and it was going rapidly -- they're very fast.

I just learned that on a beautiful airplane coming over here. He shot it squarely between the eyes and it fell, touching him but not able to destroy him. When he heard a man here threaten to kill him, right here, one of your tough people. Is he around by any chance? Would you please stand up? He rode to his house.

He rode to the man's house, knocked on his door. The man threatened to kill him. He said, I'm going to kill Roosevelt, and he declared that I've come over to see what you want to begin with and how do you want to begin the killing, he said. How do you want to begin? I'm right here in front of you; how do you want to begin the killing?

That's a little different kind of a guy. By a coincidence of history, it was exactly 128 years ago today that Colonel Roosevelt gave our nation one of the greatest examples of American courage, the age-old chronicles of military valor have ever seen. After commandeering a ship to Cuba for the volunteer regiment, he personally raised and trained his incredible Rough Riders, the Rough Riders.

I saw the Rough Riders. Where the hell are the Rough -- look at these guys. I wish I looked like that. If I looked like them, I would have been president 20 years ago. You guys are great, thank you. They could really ride those horses. They let us in; they were going faster than the car. I said to my guys, is there any danger in the way they're riding?

Yeah, there's danger, sir, but they're great riders. You guys are fantastic. Thank you. But he led the Rough Riders in their heroic charge up San Juan Heights. And with malaria coursing all throughout his veins, he was really sick, Colonel Roosevelt galloped into a hail of Spanish bullets, and when his horse came to a wire fence, he leapt off the horse.

He jumped off the horse, and he started running toward the enemy. I don't know if that was smart, but he made it. Then he looked over at the next hill, and he grabbed his men he said, fellas, let's do it again. And he did it again and again. The Rough Riders' victory at San Juan Heights led directly to the collapse of the Spanish line.

Ah, the Spanish, the members of NATO, but not very good members of NATO. They say, no, we don't want to help other people. What are we doing, huh? They are not behaving nicely, but they will learn. Soon after they relinquish their grip on Cuba and Guam, the Philippines and Puerto Rico, and they were all ours.

They all were, we got them all. And speaking of Cuba, after many, many decades, it's coming our way, coming our way. But for his actions that day, TR was celebrated as a hero and eventually awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor, that's a big deal. And I'm thrilled to announce that just moments ago, 128 years after the Battle of San Juan Heights, it was my really great privilege to deliver his library and a very special little gift.

In fact, I gave it to Doug and the president, a man who did such a good job in helping to build it. Doug raised a lot of money, got a president to be out here all day instead of 15 minutes. And I gave that medal, I took it off -- we have a beautiful room, the Roosevelt Room, this Roosevelt, by the way. And I took it off the wall, brought it over, and we just presented it and it's going to be in your library now for a long, long time.

And it will be displayed alongside the Medal of Honor earned by his brave son. His son was brave -- it's genetics, you know, it's like the racehorse theory, right? Fast horses. Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., on D-Day he also received that incredible acknowledgment, except for Arthur and Douglas MacArthur. Arthur was his son, Douglas MacArthur, great general.

They're the only father and son pair to receive our nation's highest military award for courage above and beyond the call of duty. Now, as I see my two beautiful sons sitting there, I think I'm going to give one to myself, one to them, and we'll have a threesome, OK? [Laughter] I'll pick out one of the two.

I'll give them the Congressional Medal of Honor for something. For their genius at hunting. And I'll get one for taking on Russia, Russia, Russia or something. And we'll have a third pair. No, I'm only kidding. But I have seriously thought about -- now, this is dangerous to say because the fake news is up there all over the place.

And when I joke, I always -- I learned early on, don't be sarcastic in politics. But I actually said a few times that I've seriously thought of giving myself the Congressional Medal of Honor. Now everyone knows I'm doing it with a chuckle, but then they report he wants to give himself the Congressional. So, I don't say that anymore, it's very dangerous to say.

But it is the highest award, and they had a father son get it? And that it's a tremendous tribute to a genetic pool. As we enter the 250th year, Americans must never forget, we are a historic and heroic people, with a heroic spirit and a heroic purpose. And in this world, we are a very special group. American courage won our independence, it liberated millions and millions from slavery, rescued billions from tyranny, and sustained American liberty for two and a half centuries.

And we're not going to lose it to this group of losers. Oh, can you imagine? Have you seen these people? Have you -- have you seen these people? The press is just building them up. They're losers, OK? They're nasty people, but they're losers. We'll teach them. We're going to teach them. They're not going to hurt our country.

Without courage, there is no America today. If you don't have courage, we wouldn't have America today. We wouldn't be close. Third, Theodore Roosevelt believed in the America that really works and worked. He refused to accept failure, mediocrity, corruption, decay, or decline, and neither should we. That's why we can't take this nonsense that's going on right now.

We're not going to take it. The first public cause he ever supported was a bill to fix the streets in New York City. He was very New York City and New York centric. You know that, that's where he came from. He was pretty rich family. As the civil service commissioner, he fought tooth and nail to return federal hiring to a principle called merit.

Merit, isn't that nice to hear? And by the way -- by the way, do you know, a little while ago, not in yesterday's decisions, where we actually had a good day except for birthright citizenship, which we'll work out some way. But we had something called, do you know what we're talking about? We had something that gives back tremendous power to the president of the United States, and we won that, I think, six to three.

And it was taken away from another Roosevelt. It was taken away from FDR in 1932. It was taken away. And for almost a hundred years, that's been up for grabs, slaughter, it was called, the slaughter case. And a lot of people didn't think it would ever be won and we won it two days ago in the Supreme Court.

It gives power back to the president at a time where the president really needs power. It's a great decision. It was the most important and we won some others too. It was the most important decision of all of them, I think, but we'll take care of the birthright citizenship because that was -- that was not meant for rich people from other countries.

That was meant for -- actually, it was meant for the babies of slaves. If you look at it, it was a month after the Civil War ended that it went through. That's because it was meant for the babies of slaves. It wasn't meant for rich people from China. It was -- they came over in Gulf Streams. It was meant for the babies of slaves.

So I believe -- no. I know they got it wrong, but that's OK because they gave us something that nobody thought. But they also gave us something in one of the sessions a year ago, it was called merit. Our country now is based again on merit. So if you're a student with very average marks and you looked a certain way, or you acted a certain way or whatever, and you get into the finest school in the world, and then you're somebody else that looked a certain way or acted a certain way, and you have all A pluses and you have all great marks and board numbers that are through the roof, way above other people, but you don't get in, they get in, it's all over with.

It's based now on merit. I don't even know if people know. The fake news didn't want to cover it. To me, that's one of the greatest decisions. And that took courage of the Supreme Court, because our country became great because of merit. We became great because of merit. And when you look at those soldiers that we have standing there at Washington, DC, where we ended up -- so we had the -- one of the most unsafe cities places, our capital, anywhere in the country, and now we have one of the absolute safest.

You can walk anywhere in Washington -- and we fixed up the monuments and Doug was fantastic. We had 78 monuments, fountains, statues. We have the reflecting Pond, which we did the best job of all and they came in with box cutters and they cut it up, but it's working fine. I'm going to let a little water out, we're going to redo it a little bit, but we fixed it up after 100 and -- think of it, it was 1922 that it came about.

And from the day it was built, it leaked. From the day it was built, it didn't work. But when it did, when they had water, it was beautiful. It reflected Washington, the Washington Monument. It reflected Lincoln and Washington, think of it, how beautiful, how beautiful. And, uh, these people went in and cut it up and they got caught.

We'll see what happens with them but they got caught. But they put a big gash 350 feet long. Think of that, 350 foot gash along the side of this very expensive material. But it -- we'll have it all -- it's already good. We want to have it done for July 4th and it was done for July 4th. And it's operating right now but we'll let a little water out, we'll fix it up very quickly, Doug, and it'll be just as good.

But we have for the first time ever -- what they don't say -- we spent a very small amount of money too. What they don't say is Barack Hussein Obama, have you heard of him? [Audience boos] Barack Hussein Obama spent tens of millions of dollars trying to fix it, and it was a disaster. Sleepy Joe Biden spent millions of dollars trying to fix it, and he was unable to do it, but we did it and it works beautifully.

It's a beautiful -- we got rid of the algae, which they put in. They put in algae. Who the hell put in algae? They had a couple of people with signs, protect the algae. Can you believe this? This -- this world has gone crazy. But today, I'm proud to say that after four years of decline, America is once again a nation that has strong borders, is respected by everyone, all countries, all over the world, they respect your president and they respect you.

When they respect your president, they respect you. And we solve problems and we take things on, just like Theodore Roosevelt took things on. He took them on directly, right at him. He stared in their face. But our laws will be enforced, our laws will be protected, and our law enforcement is respected again.

You know, one of the things that I'm most proud of, when I was running in the campaign, and even before I announced, you could not get people to join the military. We had the worst years we've ever had under Sleepy Joe Biden. He had no idea what the hell he was doing, and people were ashamed of our country, and you couldn't get him to join.

And then we had a beautiful day, November 5th and we won by a lot. We won by just a lot. It was incredible. We beat a woman named Kamala. We beat a brilliant young woman named Kamala, who had no clue. She was the border czar. She never went to the border, she never called the Border Patrol. I said, fellas, you ever get a call from Kamala, she's the border czar?

No, sir, she never called. I used to call them every other day, how are we doing on the border? Two months and we had a border that was perfect, two months. But Kamala never called, and she never went. So for four years, she was the border czar, she never went to the border. It's not -- doesn't typically play out very well, and we had the worst border in the world.

But these are the people that were running our government and we were a laughing stock all over the world. Not anymore; they don't laugh at us anymore. A government that was honest and accountable was the number one demand of the Declaration of Independence. They want honesty, they want respect. And on this anniversary, we recommit ourselves to upholding that righteous legacy, and that's why I'm here.

I'm in a state that I won by a landslide, but I won a lot of them by landslides, in all fairness, but this was a beauty. This was a beauty. And I refuse to tell you -- my son said, dad, don't say that, so I won't. I refuse to tell you who got more votes, me or the legendary -- and he was great -- Theodore Roosevelt.

I refuse to say because you'll say he's a braggart, he's a terrible human being, he's a horrible person, so I refuse to say. I told my son, I will not say. Thank you. Thank you for giving me some good advice Eric Trump and Don Trump. TR was also a staunch and ferocious opponent of a thing called communism.

You've been hearing a lot about that lately. He said the doctrines of communistic socialism, if consistently followed, mean the ultimate annihilation of civilization. Other than that, he thought it was wonderful. As we're seeing now, communism is the greatest threat to our country, including, I believe this.

You know when I said it, I said, boy, that's pretty severe, but I think it's true. It's the biggest threat to our country, including World War I, World War II, Pearl Harbor, September 11th, I think it's a bigger threat, potentially a bigger threat than that because it's like a cancer that spreads and you'd better stop it fast.

We will never let the United States become a communist country; it won't happen. And for three -- thank you, fourth, Theodore Roosevelt believed in an America that thinks big. He thought big. He was a big thinker; he was a tremendously big thinker. On the 4th of July in 1886, he spoke in Dickinson, North Dakota.

Anybody from Dickinson? [Audience responds affirmatively] And said, like all Americans, I like big things -- big prairies, big forests and mountains, I want them big. He wants big wheat fields. He wants tremendous railroads, let them be big and beautiful and powerful, and herds of cattle. He wants everything big, he wants big factories, steamboats.

He wants everything big. It was cool. I mean, I thought it was great because I feel that way -- I feel that -- I've always felt that way. Theodore Roosevelt wanted a big future, and he had big dreams for America. And thanks to him, we built the Panama Canal, that beautiful Panama Canal. That is not managed the way it should be, but we won't talk about that now.

But he did all of these incredible things with parks and everything else, and we vanquished every foreign power from the hemisphere, and he raised the American flag on the far side of the world. He had our American flag planted on every part of the world. He would call, or whatever they did in those days, is the flag over there, is the flag -- he wanted that flag to fly boldly in other countries and other parts of the world.

We built the Great White Fleet. Did you ever hear of the Great White Fleet? We used to build ships. We're going to start very soon building them again. We're building them, like you say, although we do build the greatest submarines ever in the world, we're 15 years ahead on submarines and other things. We do other things great, but we're going to start with the ships again.

We used to build a ship a day, now they got out of that. A lot of bad -- a lot of people that didn't know what the hell they were doing in running our country. Theodore Roosevelt understood that the grand and righteous ambition is not a vice, it is a American virtue. Having ambition is a positive thing, he said, not a negative thing.

And it won us our country, and it's been among the greatest forces for good. It's been the greatest thing. Our attitude and the attitude toward our country and making our country great by some people, not all presidents were like that. I don't want to get involved with talking about the individual presidents, but we had some good, we had a few great, we had a couple.

But we had some good, but we had some really bad ones, and they set us back very, very substantially. In particular, the last one. A nation like an individual, either rises or falls, builds or decays, lives or dies by this. As we look into the future of our 250th year, it's time that we get out there and we expand our aspirations and our ambitions and build the country that will inspire the entire world for generations.

So, that's what we're doing. Again, we have more money being invested in the United States of America by other countries and people than ever before by many, many times over. The fake news doesn't like talking about it, but they see what's happened. Look at the stock market, every day it's hitting a new high.

I think it's 82 times now in a short period of time, 82. And that's a good thing, not a bad thing. And all of you that have 401(k)s, which are many. Who has a 401(k)? 401(k)? Yeah. Big percentage of the audience. Everyone that has a 401(k) is setting records right now in your 401(k). Your wife, your husband, your kids, they all think you're a genius.

I'm a genius, I'm the one that -- I'm only kidding. [Laughter] No, I told the story the other day for the first time. A policeman came up to me, a big, strong, good-looking guy, and he said, sir, I want to thank you. He was almost sort of crying. I said what do you want to talk to me about, officer? He was standing online; he was watching as I shook hands with people.

Some of these people are extremely strong in shaking hands. They break your hand because they're so emotional. Sir, thank you very much. The guy is an NFL offensive lineman. Sir, I'd like to thank you very much. But he came up to me and he said, sir -- I was leaving -- I want to thank you so much. Why? My 401(k) is up 84 percent.

My wife was disgusted with me; for years we just -- it was just going in the wrong direction. But it's up 84 percent this year, and I just want to thank you, sir, because it's really helped me with my marriage. My wife is respecting me again. She thought I was an idiot. This is a big, strong guy. But the women, you know the women rule, you know that, we know -- all the guys in there, you know.

This guy is a big, powerful guy, and he was petrified of his wife. But you know what? He said my wife now respects me again. She thinks I'm a genius. She thinks I'm Warren Buffett. She thinks I'm one of the greatest investors. But they are up. But everybody in this room, there's not one person here that hasn't been going up 50, 60, 70, 80 percent.

Your 401(k)s, you're making a lot of money, everybody is. And we have more people working today than any time in the history of our country. We have more people working today than at any time. And we inherit a tremendous inflation problem from Biden. We inherited the worst inflation in history, 48 years, they say, but let's say history.

It was the worst inflation, and prices were high. And those prices are all coming down and you see fuel is coming way down. It's dropping like a rock, just like I said, because those boats are coming out of the Hormuz Strait. They're coming out by numbers that nobody ever saw. We're setting records actually.

The oil is dropping. We have some great oilmen here. I don't know if they're happy or sad. I don't give a damn if they're happy or sad, I want the prices to go down. And the oil is dropping like nobody thought possible. But I told you it would. Total control, we have total control of everything. This is just the beginning of the Golden Age of America.

We're in the Golden Age of America. And America is going to experience something that I can truly say, I believe the best is yet to come. It's going to be coming and it's here, but it's coming at speeds that nobody thought possible. Finally, Theodore Roosevelt understood that whatever our background, we are all Americans.

We're Americans first, united under one flag, and we don't wipe our hands on a flag. Did you hear the person, one of our communist people? But they cleaned it up; the press cleaned that statement up, you know that, right? She didn't use the word hands; she used a different word, a disgusting word. They're disgusting pigs.

She didn't use the word hand, they said hand. She used another word. You know what word I'm talking about. These people are a disgrace. That's why Theodore Roosevelt boldly fought for what he called the new nationalism. The word nationalism is a very interesting word. Putting the needs of the whole nation and all of these people above partisanship, lobbyists, crooked politicians.

One thing with these guys, they are honest as hell. I'd let you know if they were crooked. If John or Kevin were crooked, I'd say, they're crooked pals, but they're honest. Maybe they're too honest actually. We've got to get a little action going here, fellas. But no, these are great politicians, they're great people.

That's why you put them back in office in record numbers, the two of them, all the time. But TR knew that true patriotism demanded caring for the worker, the environment and the health and culture and integrity for the nation itself. He was something special. He was a really great man. He was a man the likes of which you may never see again.

But we'll all get close and we'll all try and duplicate what he's done, because he was a man of unbelievable genius and unbelievable toughness and principle. So I want to just say that it's an honor to be with you, it's an honor to be asked to represent our nation in the opening of what will be a truly great library, museum or center.

Call it what you want. And he deserves it as much as anybody that's ever been president of the United States, which is such a great honor. And I just want to thank everybody for being here on this extremely hot day.

It's a beautiful day and it's a beautiful state, and I want to thank you all. Thank you very much, everybody. Thank you. Thank you very much. Thank you.

Keypoints by Section

Opening and Purpose

- We love you, and you've been so nice to me with those votes.
- But today, we come to the heartland of America to pay tribute to a man who embodied the heart and soul and fight and spirit of our country as much as anyone who ever lived.
- Sir, we're going to have to change it, rained out -- never rained.
- But this is a time to rediscover the indomitable spirit that built our country and all that will ensure America always remains the most exceptional nation on the face of the earth.

Theodore Roosevelt and North Dakota

- And he's a very special man and that's why I'm here, President Theodore Roosevelt.
- And he loved your community, he loved your state, and he was quite something.
- And here, beneath the wide open sky of the Badlands -- they call it the Badlands.
- And it's a great place and we have -- we had a lot of fun with Doug and everybody coming over, but we talked about Theodore Roosevelt a lot, because he was something that was really very special.

Presidential Achievement and Comparisons

- But -- but I said, Doug, let's fly in, we'll do 10, 15 minutes I know I'm going to love it, and then I'll get out.
- I know more about that museum than the people that built it, but that's OK, because they did a very good job.
- I had agreed to come and they said, well, when we do it, you're going to be president, so that was during that ridiculous time, that ridiculous -- -- that ridiculous four year period of time.
- I said, I'd love to come and I said, I may or may not be president.

Policy, Government, and National Direction

- And I want to give a very special thanks to the Patriots who gave us such an incredible escort from town.
- You know, I love law enforcement and according to -- According to the people that are running on the other side, in many places, they want to defund the police.
- We need a little bit more of that in our country, don't -- but we do pretty good.
- Think of it, we have the best border, strongest border.

Closing Message

- And you know, Doug called me he said, would you do me a favor?
- He's really fantastic, because I did not know the gentleman too well, but he said, Kelly Armstrong is fantastic; would you endorse him for governor?
- And two of my very good friends, two warrior Senators, tough cookies.
- Oh, I wish they could get their way, we could get a couple of little things passed, like voter identification, like proof of citizenship.

Other Remarks

- On the steps of the Burning Hills, we dedicate a living monument to a legend, a statesman, a soldier, a frontiersman, and a true American hero.
- And, number one, I have to tell you, because this was an inaugural flight of a certain airplane called Air Force One, after 37 years.
- He was a real man of many forms of genius, and without whom it would never have been possible, secretary of the interior.
- And I'll tell you what, I thought he was an oil man, and he wasn't.

Vocabulary and Phrase List

The appendix preserves the generated study list. Reader notes are intentionally brief so the list remains useful as a review section.

Term	Meaning and Example
acknowledgment word; count 1	Check meaning in context; useful for political speech and public-address vocabulary. Example: Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., on D-Day he also received that incredible acknowledgment, except for Arthur and Douglas MacArthur.
administration word; count 1	Check meaning in context; useful for political speech and public-address vocabulary. Example: But he said, you know, one year ago, during the Biden, Sleepy Joe, during the Biden administration, he said, one year ago, your country was dead.
identification word; count 1	Check meaning in context; useful for political speech and public-address vocabulary. Example: Oh, I wish they could get their way, we could get a couple of little things passed, like voter identification, like proof of citizenship.
determination word; count 1	Check meaning in context; useful for political speech and public-address vocabulary. Example: As America turns 250 years old, we look at this remarkable man, and we recall that with effort, determination and drive, there is nothing that Americans of competence cannot do, n...
annihilation word; count 1	Check meaning in context; useful for political speech and public-address vocabulary. Example: He said the doctrines of communistic socialism, if consistently followed, mean the ultimate annihilation of civilization.
anticipation word; count 1	Check meaning in context; useful for political speech and public-address vocabulary. Example: And as you know, this week, Americans all across our nation are filled with joy and excitement and anticipation as we prepare for one of the proudest moments in our history.
civilization word; count 1	Check meaning in context; useful for political speech and public-address vocabulary. Example: He said the doctrines of communistic socialism, if consistently followed, mean the ultimate annihilation of civilization.
construction word; count 1	Check meaning in context; useful for political speech and public-address vocabulary. Example: And I understand that one local construction worker delayed his retirement by four years just to be involved with the building, and they heard I was going to come.
conversation word; count 1	Check meaning in context; useful for political speech and public-address vocabulary. Example: I even had a conversation with Theodore Roosevelt.
partisanship word; count 1	Check meaning in context; useful for political speech and public-address vocabulary. Example: Putting the needs of the whole nation and all of these people above partisanship, lobbyists, crooked politicians.
affirmatively word; count 1	Check meaning in context; useful for political speech and public-address vocabulary. Example: [Audience responds affirmatively] And said, like all Americans, I like big things -- big prairies, big forests and mountains, I want them big.
approximately word; count 1	Check meaning in context; useful for political speech and public-address vocabulary. Example: And by the way, on July 4th, it's going to be approximately 107 degrees out.
commandeering word; count 1	Check meaning in context; useful for political speech and public-address vocabulary. Example: After commandeering a ship to Cuba for the volunteer regiment, he personally raised and trained his incredible Rough Riders, the Rough Riders.
congresswoman word; count 1	Check meaning in context; useful for political speech and public-address vocabulary. Example: And a Congresswoman who fights and gets what she wants and she's very respected, Julie Fedorchak.

Term	Meaning and Example
environmental word; count 1	Check meaning in context; useful for political speech and public-address vocabulary. Example: Years ago, it was a big oil drilling; now they won't drill because the environmental lunatics have said, don't do it.
extraordinary word; count 1	Check meaning in context; useful for political speech and public-address vocabulary. Example: From a lot of them, you don't want to learn much, but you can learn from him and here are five lessons that are really extraordinary, life offers to all Americans on the threshold...
laughingstock word; count 1	Check meaning in context; useful for political speech and public-address vocabulary. Example: I'm proud that two years ago we had a country that was a laughingstock all over the world, and now we have the hottest country anywhere in the world.
substantially word; count 1	Check meaning in context; useful for political speech and public-address vocabulary. Example: But we had some good, but we had some really bad ones, and they set us back very, very substantially.
teleprompters word; count 1	screens that show speech text to a speaker Example: And number four, I have two teleprompters that aren't working and here I stand.
achievement word; count 1	something important accomplished Example: Do you consider that your greatest achievement?
coincidence word; count 1	Check meaning in context; useful for political speech and public-address vocabulary. Example: By a coincidence of history, it was exactly 128 years ago today that Colonel Roosevelt gave our nation one of the greatest examples of American courage, the age-old chronicles of...
combination word; count 1	Check meaning in context; useful for political speech and public-address vocabulary. Example: That's a nice combination, a little bit like Venezuela.
environment word; count 1	Check meaning in context; useful for political speech and public-address vocabulary. Example: But TR knew that true patriotism demanded caring for the worker, the environment and the health and culture and integrity for the nation itself.
scholarship word; count 1	Check meaning in context; useful for political speech and public-address vocabulary. Example: And today, the artistry and scholarship, technical skill on display right here and in that museum in particular is just fantastic, it's really great.
unattractive word; count 2	Check meaning in context; useful for political speech and public-address vocabulary. Example: They've got some very unattractive candidates, I have to say.
assassinated word; count 1	Check meaning in context; useful for political speech and public-address vocabulary. Example: But McKinley, actually he was assassinated, but he made tremendous amounts of money; made our country very rich.
commissioner word; count 1	Check meaning in context; useful for political speech and public-address vocabulary. Example: As the civil service commissioner, he fought tooth and nail to return federal hiring to a principle called merit.
consistently word; count 1	Check meaning in context; useful for political speech and public-address vocabulary. Example: He said the doctrines of communistic socialism, if consistently followed, mean the ultimate annihilation of civilization.
frontiersman word; count 1	Check meaning in context; useful for political speech and public-address vocabulary. Example: On the steps of the Burning Hills, we dedicate a living monument to a legend, a statesman, a soldier, a frontiersman, and a true American hero.
transferring word; count 1	Check meaning in context; useful for political speech and public-address vocabulary. Example: And transferring 90 acres, we took it right out of the federal government, we ripped it away from the federal government.

Term	Meaning and Example
independence word; count 4	Check meaning in context; useful for political speech and public-address vocabulary. Example: Three days from now, we will celebrate the 250th anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence.
competence word; count 1	Check meaning in context; useful for political speech and public-address vocabulary. Example: As America turns 250 years old, we look at this remarkable man, and we recall that with effort, determination and drive, there is nothing that Americans of competence cannot do, n...
confidence word; count 1	Check meaning in context; useful for political speech and public-address vocabulary. Example: His chest swelled with American optimism, confidence, enthusiasm, pride.
conviction word; count 1	Check meaning in context; useful for political speech and public-address vocabulary. Example: This country was built on the conviction that just because something is hard to do, that only means that Americans try even harder.
corruption word; count 1	Check meaning in context; useful for political speech and public-address vocabulary. Example: He refused to accept failure, mediocrity, corruption, decay, or decline, and neither should we.
excitement word; count 1	Check meaning in context; useful for political speech and public-address vocabulary. Example: And as you know, this week, Americans all across our nation are filled with joy and excitement and anticipation as we prepare for one of the proudest moments in our history.
foundation word; count 1	Check meaning in context; useful for political speech and public-address vocabulary. Example: But the members of the Roosevelt family and countless foundation staff, donors and supporters, everyone's here.
mediocrity word; count 1	Check meaning in context; useful for political speech and public-address vocabulary. Example: He refused to accept failure, mediocrity, corruption, decay, or decline, and neither should we.
patriotism word; count 1	Check meaning in context; useful for political speech and public-address vocabulary. Example: But TR knew that true patriotism demanded caring for the worker, the environment and the health and culture and integrity for the nation itself.
retirement word; count 1	Check meaning in context; useful for political speech and public-address vocabulary. Example: And I understand that one local construction worker delayed his retirement by four years just to be involved with the building, and they heard I was going to come.
declaration word; count 2	Check meaning in context; useful for political speech and public-address vocabulary. Example: Three days from now, we will celebrate the 250th anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence.
nationalism word; count 2	Check meaning in context; useful for political speech and public-address vocabulary. Example: That's why Theodore Roosevelt boldly fought for what he called the new nationalism.
persistence word; count 2	Check meaning in context; useful for political speech and public-address vocabulary. Example: It's been really an unflagging persistence that drove us into greatness.
congressional word; count 4	Check meaning in context; useful for political speech and public-address vocabulary. Example: But for his actions that day, TR was celebrated as a hero and eventually awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor, that's a big deal.
accountable word; count 1	Check meaning in context; useful for political speech and public-address vocabulary. Example: A government that was honest and accountable was the number one demand of the Declaration of Independence.
appropriate word; count 1	Check meaning in context; useful for political speech and public-address vocabulary. Example: It's appropriate -- the one on my right is slightly better than the one on my left.

Term	Meaning and Example
aspirations word; count 1	Check meaning in context; useful for political speech and public-address vocabulary. Example: As we look into the future of our 250th year, it's time that we get out there and we expand our aspirations and our ambitions and build the country that will inspire the entire wo...
beautifully word; count 1	Check meaning in context; useful for political speech and public-address vocabulary. Example: Sleepy Joe Biden spent millions of dollars trying to fix it, and he was unable to do it, but we did it and it works beautifully.
communistic word; count 1	Check meaning in context; useful for political speech and public-address vocabulary. Example: He said the doctrines of communistic socialism, if consistently followed, mean the ultimate annihilation of civilization.
exceptional word; count 1	Check meaning in context; useful for political speech and public-address vocabulary. Example: But this is a time to rediscover the indomitable spirit that built our country and all that will ensure America always remains the most exceptional nation on the face of the earth.
fascinating word; count 1	Check meaning in context; useful for political speech and public-address vocabulary. Example: Such a fascinating thing, the Panama Canal.
forecasting word; count 1	Check meaning in context; useful for political speech and public-address vocabulary. Example: So, you never know about weather forecasting, do you?
generations word; count 1	Check meaning in context; useful for political speech and public-address vocabulary. Example: As we look into the future of our 250th year, it's time that we get out there and we expand our aspirations and our ambitions and build the country that will inspire the entire wo...
indomitable word; count 1	Check meaning in context; useful for political speech and public-address vocabulary. Example: But this is a time to rediscover the indomitable spirit that built our country and all that will ensure America always remains the most exceptional nation on the face of the earth.
interesting word; count 1	Check meaning in context; useful for political speech and public-address vocabulary. Example: The word nationalism is a very interesting word.
legislature word; count 1	Check meaning in context; useful for political speech and public-address vocabulary. Example: And all of the members of the North Dakota legislature.
philippines word; count 1	Check meaning in context; useful for political speech and public-address vocabulary. Example: Soon after they relinquish their grip on Cuba and Guam, the Philippines and Puerto Rico, and they were all ours.
potentially word; count 1	Check meaning in context; useful for political speech and public-address vocabulary. Example: It's the biggest threat to our country, including World War I, World War II, Pearl Harbor, September 11th, I think it's a bigger threat, potentially a bigger threat than that beca...
prosecuting word; count 1	Check meaning in context; useful for political speech and public-address vocabulary. Example: [Laughter] Doug said, you could come in -- you know, I'm prosecuting a war, which we're winning very easily, by the way.
rediscovery word; count 1	Check meaning in context; useful for political speech and public-address vocabulary. Example: There could be no better place to begin this rediscovery than with the lifetimes and passions of Theodore Roosevelt.
republicans word; count 1	Check meaning in context; useful for political speech and public-address vocabulary. Example: We have 100 percent of the Democrats against it and four or five Republicans, if you can believe that.

Term	Meaning and Example
roosevelt's word; count 1	Check meaning in context; useful for political speech and public-address vocabulary. Example: Today, 107 years after he passed into eternity, Theodore Roosevelt's presidential library opens its doors in the small town, but very great town and, today, it's a very famous tow...
surrendered word; count 1	Check meaning in context; useful for political speech and public-address vocabulary. Example: He never stopped, never quit, never surrendered in pursuit of his dreams.
transformed word; count 1	Check meaning in context; useful for political speech and public-address vocabulary. Example: By the end of the 60 years, TR had transformed his country by the reach of his vision.
yesterday's word; count 1	Check meaning in context; useful for political speech and public-address vocabulary. Example: And by the way -- by the way, do you know, a little while ago, not in yesterday's decisions, where we actually had a good day except for birthright citizenship, which we'll work o...
presidential word; count 2	related to a president Example: Today, 107 years after he passed into eternity, Theodore Roosevelt's presidential library opens its doors in the small town, but very great town and, today, it's a very famous tow...
tremendously word; count 2	Check meaning in context; useful for political speech and public-address vocabulary. Example: But you did and you've become a tremendously wealthy state, a very successful state with low taxes.
citizenship word; count 3	Check meaning in context; useful for political speech and public-address vocabulary. Example: Oh, I wish they could get their way, we could get a couple of little things passed, like voter identification, like proof of citizenship.
enforcement word; count 3	Check meaning in context; useful for political speech and public-address vocabulary. Example: We had more law enforcement.
unbelievable word; count 3	Check meaning in context; useful for political speech and public-address vocabulary. Example: They also predicted -- the fight that we had three weeks ago was unbelievable at the White House.
community word; count 1	Check meaning in context; useful for political speech and public-address vocabulary. Example: And he loved your community, he loved your state, and he was quite something.
direction word; count 1	Check meaning in context; useful for political speech and public-address vocabulary. Example: My wife was disgusted with me; for years we just -- it was just going in the wrong direction.
endowment word; count 1	Check meaning in context; useful for political speech and public-address vocabulary. Example: And this afternoon, I'm pleased to announce that, through the National Endowment for the Humanities, we will be awarding the library $750,000 to support the opening exhibits durin...
ferocious word; count 1	Check meaning in context; useful for political speech and public-address vocabulary. Example: TR was also a staunch and ferocious opponent of a thing called communism.
integrity word; count 1	Check meaning in context; useful for political speech and public-address vocabulary. Example: But TR knew that true patriotism demanded caring for the worker, the environment and the health and culture and integrity for the nation itself.
offensive word; count 1	Check meaning in context; useful for political speech and public-address vocabulary. Example: The guy is an NFL offensive lineman.
socialism word; count 1	Check meaning in context; useful for political speech and public-address vocabulary. Example: He said the doctrines of communistic socialism, if consistently followed, mean the ultimate annihilation of civilization.

Term	Meaning and Example
absolutely word; count 1	Check meaning in context; useful for political speech and public-address vocabulary. Example: Oh, absolutely, sir.
ambassador word; count 1	Check meaning in context; useful for political speech and public-address vocabulary. Example: And we have our ambassador, Monica.
attributed word; count 1	Check meaning in context; useful for political speech and public-address vocabulary. Example: I want to use that -- I shouldn't have said it, I would have used that statement, and I wouldn't have attributed it to TR.
pay tribute to phrase; count 1	show public respect or praise Example: But today, we come to the heartland of America to pay tribute to a man who embodied the heart and soul and fight and spirit of our country as much as anyone who ever lived.
heart and soul phrase; count 1	the deepest character or spirit of something Example: But today, we come to the heartland of America to pay tribute to a man who embodied the heart and soul and fight and spirit of our country as much as anyone who ever lived.
wide open sky phrase; count 1	visual phrase used to evoke landscape and freedom Example: And here, beneath the wide open sky of the Badlands -- they call it the Badlands.
national treasure phrase; count 1	something presented as valuable to the whole country Example: So there could be no better place for this new national treasure than the Rough Rider state.
rough rider phrase; count 8	historical reference to Roosevelt's cavalry image Example: So there could be no better place for this new national treasure than the Rough Rider state.
passed into eternity phrase; count 1	solemn phrase meaning died Example: Today, 107 years after he passed into eternity, Theodore Roosevelt's presidential library opens its doors in the small town, but very great town and, today, it's a very famous tow...
opens its doors phrase; count 1	begins operating or welcomes the public Example: Today, 107 years after he passed into eternity, Theodore Roosevelt's presidential library opens its doors in the small town, but very great town and, today, it's a very famous tow...
golden age phrase; count 2	Useful fixed phrase or rhetorical expression in the speech. Example: This is just the beginning of the Golden Age of America.
medal of honor phrase; count 4	Useful fixed phrase or rhetorical expression in the speech. Example: But for his actions that day, TR was celebrated as a hero and eventually awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor, that's a big deal.
presidential library phrase; count 2	Useful fixed phrase or rhetorical expression in the speech. Example: Today, 107 years after he passed into eternity, Theodore Roosevelt's presidential library opens its doors in the small town, but very great town and, today, it's a very famous tow...
panama canal phrase; count 11	Useful fixed phrase or rhetorical expression in the speech. Example: I said, what did you think about the Panama Canal?